

Feminist Perspectives on Contemporary International Law: Between Resistance and Compliance? (Onati International Series in Law and Society)

The essays in this volume analyse feminisms positioning vis-A-vis international law and the current paradigms of international law. The authors argue that, willingly or unwillingly, feminist perspectives on international law have come to be situated between resistance and compliance. That is, feminist scholarship aims at deconstructing international law to show why and how women have been marginalised; at the same time feminists have been largely unwilling to challenge the core of international law and its institutions, remaining hopeful of international laws potential for women. The analysis is clustered around three themes: the first part, theory and method, looks at how feminist perspectives on international law have developed and seeks to introduce new theoretical and methodological tools (especially through a focus on psychoanalysis and geography). The second part, national and international security, focuses on how feminists have situated themselves in relation to the current discourses of crisis, the post-9/11 NGO industry and the changing discourses of violence against women. The third part, global and local justice, addresses some of the emerging trends in international law, focusing especially on transitional justice, state-building, trafficking and economic globalisation.
