

ADRIFT IN THE VALLEY OF THE SUN

When his mother discloses on her deathbed that he was the progeny of her liaison with a handsome western rancher, Grayson Hume decides to seek his father and perhaps his fortune in nineteenth century Arizona Territory. On a sudden whim, he leaves the train in Benson, Arizona, where he meets the beautiful daughter of the president of the Southern Pacific Railway, Katherine Morgen. Upon accepting the post of Station Master in the wild mining town of Bisbee, Gray finds himself inexorably linked to an old prospector named Claude in his efforts to win Kathys hand. Graysons path through the oftentragic happenings in the late 1880s proves to be a perilous journey. On a parallel path the story traces the odyssey of his father, Evan Hume, through much of the Arizona wilderness. When the two finally come together the conclusion is bittersweet.
