

Henry Tuckahoes War on Washington

Professor Melton's hero is a 200-year old member of the Tuckahoe Indian tribe. In a dazzling display of storytelling, the author accompanies Henry Tuckahoe as he exacts fearful vengeance on the people who stole the Potomac Basin from his ancestors. Henry Tuckahoe does what some Washington realtors may dream of doing by selling and re-selling his tribal homelands at artificially high and selfishly manipulated prices. The ways he gets his listings are NOT ETHICAL! Henry Tuckahoe is not the only paranormal personality Melton presents in his blasphemous work. He weaves a collection of strangely modern characters into a story that challenges (read offends) every political conviction. HT is elegantly written, invariably FUNNY, and transcends the base politics that anchors its plot. If you have a taste for black humor and enjoy Jonathan Swift, Evelyn Waugh, Tom Sharpe, and Peter DeVries, you will love Henry Tuckahoe.
