

Souls of Silica

Barnum, a small township in Silica County, population eighty, is wiped out overnight. The corpses of the populous are scattered throughout town, all victims of gunshots to the head. A lone sniper on the roof of the gas station shoots through walls, thick forest, and cars, killing people that he cant possibly see. That he cant possibly know exist. Captain Layland of the Silica Sheriffs Department listens as a church bell in the distance signals, one by one, the death of his men. As night falls, the already disturbed sniper fires on the corpses of those hes already killed, chanting and screaming absurd commands. Layland watches as the bodies begin taking on a life of their own.
