

Lady and the Fed

FBI Agent Max Drew always loved the grind of her job until the day it threatened to take the one woman from her life she could never live without. Defense attorney Savannah DeRossi was sassy, smart and infuriatingly sexy the very fantasy keeping Max awake at night. Max wanted all of Savannah but each time she laid her heart on the line the woman ran. Would Max be able to convince Savannah that they were destined to be together before its too late? Maxwell Drew was gorgeous, charming and ridiculously good in bed, all the things Savannah thought she wanted in a lover. But with a dangerous woman on both their cases will her fear of what Max has to offer threaten her safety and her only chance at passion, devotion and love. Excerpt: As I adjusted my body to get more comfortable, a light scent of lilac and jasmine tickled my senses. I quickly tensed at the thought of having participated in a drunken tryst. Oh God, what the hell did I get myself into last night. Im going to kill Stephanie for all those kamikazes she kept bringing to the table. I could have sworn I was babysitting the same glass all night. Chancing a quick glance at my newest bed buddy I was relieved to find myself face to face with a woman that could only be described as breathtaking. Her face was framed by the deepest shade of auburn hair I had ever seen. Itching to touch the soft wavy hair, I reached out to move her long bangs from across her slightly rounded face. Her radiant skin looked as if it had recently been kissed by the sun, her petite nose seemed to be dusted with light brown freckles extending out across her cheeks. I let my eyes fall down to a perfect set of pouty, pink lips and prayed I would be allowed to suck on those later. Rolling onto my back I did a quick fist pump in celebration of my obvious conquest.
