

A History of Silence

A History of Silence is the debut collection from the celebrated poetry slam champion. Carrie Rudzinski's confessional, haunting verse lavishes detail on her beloved Midwest even as she chronicles her journeys eastward. These are tales of exploration, voyages of the children within each of us striving to love and shelter the adults the world has required us to become. The E-book edition has been revised and edited for Kindle, and it includes three never-before-published poems from the same period in Rudzinski's poetic journey. The E-book also includes a new preface by April Ranger, a 2008 National Poetry Slam Finalist and a frequent touring companion of the poet. Readers and fans who know Carrie Rudzinski from her finals stage appearances at the 2013 Individual World Poetry Slam or the Women of the World Poetry Slam will be impressed and delighted by this collection of her earlier work. Those who remember her from her early days in the Gringo Choir and Cantab Slam Teams will enjoy revisiting such classics as Shutter Dove and Open Letter to the Last Person I Will Ever Love.
