

Continual Supervision (Social Insecurity Book 2)

Lyn and Terry Walker are in serious trouble. Two tribunals have failed to resolve their Disability Living Allowance case and now they're facing a Court hearing and the real prospect of prison. How can Lyn cope with the stress and, after his latest health scare, will it all be too much for Terry? Will the support of their family, and of the advisers at the Solent Welfare Rights Project, be enough? Can Martin Connolly recover his bruised confidence and do justice to their cases? Is Sally Archer focussed on her work for the Project or distracted by her family's financial crises? And while it seems to be sizzling high summer for Hilary Carrington rather than the faded autumn she feared, can her hopes of happiness survive the scheming of jealous Gary Pike and the lingering shadows of her own sad past? The second part of the story that began with Severe Discomfort, Continual Supervision contains shocks and surprises as Lyn and Terry hear the final verdicts on their cases, and their advisers face an ever more uncertain future.
